Do you want to contribute to ending statelessness in the Americas?

The Center for Justice and International Law (CEJIL) in Washington DC is seeking an intern for Fall 2015 (September to December). The intern will work on strengthening and promoting the Americas Network on Nationality and Statelessness, which is being hosted by CEJIL. Individuals with skills in communications and social media, and an interest in human rights and international affairs, are encouraged to apply. Knowledge of Spanish is an asset but not mandatory.

What is the Americas Network on Nationality and Statelessness?

The Americas Network on Nationality and Statelessness (ANA) is a network of civil society organizations, academic initiatives, and individual experts committed to address statelessness in the Americas. We believe that all human beings have a right to a nationality and that those who lack nationality altogether - stateless persons - are entitled to adequate protection.

We are committed to raise awareness of statelessness in the Americas, identify affected people throughout the region, advocate for the recognition and respect of the rights of stateless persons. We aim to engage in knowledge sharing surrounding the subject of statelessness in order to create a cohesive network that can best defend the human rights of stateless peoples, cooperate with states in order to strengthen international protection mechanisms, and exchange information with our sister organizations around the world.
